

Libraries Aided by Computers

The cataloging of book and non-book materials with data processing equipment is being developed by the Xerox-Professional Library Service in Santa Ana.

The utilization of this system by the Torrance Unified School District for the high school library collections was brought to the attention of the board of trustees by Dr. Roderick McDaniels, director of educational materials.

The board authorized Dr. McDaniels to conduct a "soft" investigation of advancements made in the field, but the trustees feel serious consideration for the project is premature.

A DESIRABLE program, according to the preliminary report, would serve four functions:

- Allow storage of all information relative to individual items in each of the collections throughout the district.
 - Set production of printed book catalogues descriptive of the various collections.
 - Provide necessary labels, wrappers, pockets, and other processing requirements to prepare the book and non-book materials for circulation to students or teachers.
 - Machine readable documents necessary for circulation control, inventory control, purchasing, and accounting operations.
- The Education Materials Building staff and members of the data processing staff believe the necessary expenditures of energy and money to describe the specifics of an effective system, develop data processing control programs, and authenticate and input the necessary information were of such magnitude it is not within the independent capacity of the school district to accomplish.

Two Employes 'Loaned' For United Fund Crusade

Arthur C. "Q" Quattlebaum and Marvin E. "Red" Beyrodt, Jr. are on full-time loan from their companies to Harbor Area United Crusade for the duration of the campaign.

Quattlebaum is Logistics Liaison for Service Contracts and Requirements, Field Service and Support, of the Aerospace Group of Hughes Aircraft Company. A retired Air Force Lt. Col. with 29 years in the service, Quattlebaum lives on Palos Verdes Drive North in Palos Verdes Estates, with his wife, Peggy, and their son, Paul, 17. Their daughter, Marta Jean, 18, was recently married to Gary Butcher, and they live in Redondo Beach.

Beyrodt is with Northrop Corporation where his field of responsibility is Community Relations. He and his wife, Donna, and their two children, Tommy, 12, and Christian, 14, have lived on Kinard Avenue in the Carson area since 1957.

QUATTLEBAUM and Beyrodt are retained by Hughes and Northrop on their respective payrolls, but are released to the Crusade to call on other corporations for corporate donations, and to encourage and help organize employe contribution programs within the companies.

Approximately 88 per cent of United Crusade funds in Los Angeles County are raised by employe groups and commercial and industrial corporations.
